My first job interview was complete failure. I was invited to the interview for merchandising position.

There were several people that were also waiting for the interview when I arrived. I was very nervous because I didn't know what to expect as it was my first job interview. It became even worse when I entered into the office. It was full of people I didn't know and no one even greeted me. I was interviewed by very attractive young woman.

At first, she asked me what my education was and to introduce myself in couple of sentences. I can't remember what were my answers but I know that I was satisfied. Than that woman asked me if I knew what merchandising was. I was shocked because it was the first time I have even heard that word. I think that she was also shocked with my answer that was quite short: "No". After her explanation she asked me if I was active driver and if I was willing to work full-time job for that company. The main problem, later on, was the date of beginning to work for the company. She mentioned a date which didn't suite me because I had a exam that I had been preparing for a several months. When I asked her if I can start a day later or to come that date but few hours later when I finished the exam, she gave me negative response. That was the end of the interview.

Although this interview was unsuccessful I have learnt so many things. I found out that I have to be much more prepared when I have a job interview. It is very important to know main things about company and position that I would apply.
